For this purpose, it initiated a regional network of educational professionals, non-profit organizations and schools called Tenerife Courses, details at www.tenerifecourses.com.

As a general purpose, EDUPLUS promotes the transformation and improvement of the society through education, culture, ecology and citizen participation. It facilitates the collaboration between education professionals and other professionals in order to develop and promote active teaching methodologies and innovative tools for formal, non-formal and informal education.

Every year, EDUPLUS trains around 300-400 staff and volunteers from all educational fields (adult, school, VET education etc) from almost all EU countries.

EDUPLUS aims at developing projects and educational projects on social, cultural, environmental, personal development, and other topics. We work both with the general public and for disadvantaged and / or vulnerable groups (elderly, women, people with economic instability, young people, people living in disadvantaged areas, people with special needs and others);

EDUPLUS promotes active citizenship, critical thinking and social implication of citizens, and in particular educators, in the cultural and social life of the local community.

EDUPLUS also aims at increasing awareness about the importance of the natural and cultural heritage of the area as well as developing local, regional and international projects to protect its treasures. Tenerife has 43 protected areas and 48,6% of the territory of Tenerife island is subject to some form of protection.
